THE SPARTAN CORPORATION 1977 ANNUAL REPORT TO INVESTORS

TO OUR SHAREHOLDERS:

For the Spartan Corporation, 1976-77 was a significant year. We are pleased to report it surpassed any other by way of the quality of its leadership, achievement and involvement. Although many changes occurred, we were still able to realize our full dynamic potential. In this report we hope to reflect this potential by conveying the corporation's atmosphere and spirit through pictures and words. The report is as follows:

Highlights .....	2
Corporate Profile .....	18
Dividends .....	34
Liabilities .....	46
Markets and Operations .....	84
Net Earnings .....	100
Assets .....	142

History is what is in the past. A simple enough statement, but does history have more than one meaning?

To some, history is a dirty word. A word that means nothing more than a required class in which someone makes you read and write, or, for that matter, think. Others seem to feel that it is simply an addition of knowledge to be used for future reference. But history has a fun and exciting side to it.

World history is continually in the making. And within the world's history are the histories of sciences, languages, cultures, religions, and countries. HP has a history, and it is far from insignificant.

For example, did you know that the Ohio State football team practiced on Reeder Field for a Rose Bowl Game against USC in 1936? Or can you imagine yourself attending school in a tent? Well, that is exactly what the students of 1911 found themselves doing after a catastrophic fire.

Through the help of many people, a finalized document of the school's history and events has been completed. In 1975, Peter Perakis' tenth grade English class, at the request of the Advanced Journalism class, began to research the history of the school by reading old yearbooks and newspapers.

During the summer of 1975 Pat Panos, editor of the Spartan Shield, completed a resume of the historical facts collected by the class; starting with the year 1909.

In 1976, Lisa Golden, Ann Dannelly, Yasmin Rodriguez, and Dana Malkenhorst then proceeded to compile the written material into a magazine format. Progress was slowed and finally stopped when the funds for the project were relinquished. Then, in the fall of 1977, production was renewed as the yearbook editors took over the job.

In addition to the help mentioned above, Dr. Paul Griffin and Shigeru Kawashiri's bicentennial display was utilized to complete the school's history.

So now, after three years of hard work, the 1977 El Recuerdo yearbook staff is pleased to present the past and present 68 years of HP.

Our task seemed impossible. But in the next few pages we will attempt to give you a brief pictorial overview of Huntington Park High School's long and eventful history.

In late March of 1909, Huntington Park Union High School was but an idea. Dedicated men from the surrounding communities of Huntington Park, Vernon, Fruitland (now Maywood) and Bell recognized the need for a local high school and set out to provide their community with one. After putting forth tireless effort in raising the $65,000 in bonds needed to begin construction on the school, the men began to see their infant dream become a reality.

While the first buildings were under construction, the High School was temporarily housed on the second floor of the Weber Building on the northwest corner of Pacific Boulevard and Randolph St.

On September 7, 1909, consisting of little more than 5.72 acres of land, six teachers, one building and a few temporary quarters, Huntington Park Union High School opened its doors to a grand total of 35 students.

The first school year went smoothly with no unfortunate mishaps and the first annual commencement exercise was held on June 17, 1910, with only one graduate, Miss Olive Pettus.

When the second school year arrived, the teaching staff was increased from six to ten teachers. It was also in this school year that a very special project was begun. In 1911, a committee of seniors was formed to decide on an appropriate name for the first edition of the yearbook. After rejecting several suggestions, they agreed upon "El Recuerdo", meaning the keepsake or memento, offered by Leonard Byres, a graduate of 1913.

It was also in this year that the school purchased 16 additional acres of land for the purpose of building an agricultural school and for the installation of a pumping plant which furnished 65 pounds of pressure for a fire sprinkler system in case of fire. But Huntington Park Union High School was not to be so fortunate that year.

In the early hours of October 18, 1911, disaster struck and left the school in ruins. In order to better recreate the scene, this quotation from the El Recuerdo for 1912 bears this sad but inspiring legend:

IN MEMORIAM

"On the morning of October 18, 1911, a disastrous fire left the material part of our High School, a mass of smoldering ruins; but the spirit which made our school and the associations which have become dear to us were not destroyed. On the ruins of the old we hope to see even a better edifice arise — one worthy to be the intellectual laboratory of the rising generations."

Undaunted by the loss of the buildings and equipment, Principal A. F. Wood, together with the school board, rented a group of tents, equipped them with folding chairs, temporary blackboards, carpeted them with sawdust and reopened the school almost immediately.

Many of Huntington Park High School's present buildings and locations have been rededicated to former principals and faculty members. Reeder Field was named for J. M. Reeder, the school's second principal. K. L. Stockton, a later principal, was honored by having Stockton Court dedicated to him. Squire Gym was renamed and dedicated to HPHS's first athletic coach, R. E. ("Pop") Squire.

Huntington Park Union High School's first 11 years were indeed eventful, though oft times tragic. The spirit of both student body and faculty helped renew the hope for an even better and more successful second decade.

THE '20's - GROWTH AND CHANGE

With the onset of the twenties, HPUHS began to take on an entirely different look. With 21 rooms consisting of a print shop, a publication room, a student store, an office, classrooms, and restrooms, the new Liberal Arts building was added to the existing structures. Then, in the following year, an auditorium was built on the same location as our present auditorium. Each building was connected to the others by corridors and broad covered pavements. Together with the reflecting pond, greenery, and spacious lawns, it was a splendid view.

The students were proud of their school, but little did they suspect of the tragedy that would befall HP in the earthquake of 1933.

Due to the size of our school in the 1910's, sports were very limited. Our entire athletic program then consisted of a baseball team, boys' and girls' basketball, track and cross country. But soon, diverse and exciting sports such as water polo, tennis, swimming, volleyball and hockey became an integral part of HP's tradition.

Football made its entrance at HP in 1921. Although losing the first season miserably, the players always put up a hardy fight for the good old "Honor and Pride."

Could you imagine yourself being classified as a Flea-weight? Well, you would have been just that had you been on a Cee team. It was in the early twenties that both football and basketball teams were divided into Heavy-weights, Lightweights and Fleaweights instead of Varsity, Bee and Cee.

Organizations such as Girls' League, Boys' Forum, Spartans, Red Cross and C.S.F. all originated during the pre-30's era. Many other clubs were widely active during that time. Cives Romani (Latin Club), the Debate team, Rooters Club and the Ukelele Club were a few that one might have belonged to.

The large music department, composed of Advanced Orchestra, Band, and Glee Club not only enriched and enlivened the existence of many HP students, but those of the community as well.

Class activities were continually in the making. With each year, every class — Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior — produced their own plays. These were performed in the evenings for the community. Included in the long list of dazzling performances were such plays as, "Romeo and Juliet" and "Snow White." On these nights, the auditorium was filled to capacity.

Many significant changes came about in this decade at HP that may have gone unnoticed. One quite obscure incident occurred in 1925 when the Bell branch of Huntington Park Union High School (now Bell High School) was opened to ease the overcrowded situation at HPUHS. It was also in this year that a name was given to the, as yet, nameless school newspaper. It became, appropriately, the Spartan Shield. One additional change came about when problems arose concerning school colors. Proud of their green and white colors, HP relinquished them and opted for the new Spartan orange and gray when it became difficult to distinguish one school from another.

During these swinging twenties, what would life have been like without a few parties? HP was not about to be left out of the song and dance. To keep up with the times, each class threw a wild party in the school bungalow. Apparently these parties could not have been too wild for by twelve o'clock midnight, it was time to go home.

OF TRAGEDY

Although the '30's held an era of depression and hard times, the people of Sparta knew that it wouldn't last long and made the best of it!

During this decade, the campus had an entirely different look from that of today. In front of Westover Hall stood a fountain, the Administration building was a stately brick structure and HP also housed an Industrial Arts complex.

Then suddenly at 5:55 p.m. on March 10, 1933, the walls of Sparta and the city of Huntington Park crumbled. The Administration building, several bungalows and the beautiful fountain were destroyed, cancelling classes for many days. The shock and tragedy rendered by the earthquake were not soon forgotten, but despite the thought of knowing that their school lay in ruins, HP students resumed classes at South Gate High School, once part of HP Union High School.

The fountain has since been replaced by a flowerbed, the Administration building has been rebuilt and the faculty parking lot now covers the place where the Industrial Arts complex once stood.

Movie theaters on Pacific Boulevard showed double-feature films for an incredible 15 or 20 cents, along with a mug of ice cold Hires Root Beer for another nickel. Imagine, a Friday night out for less than a quarter!

School dances, being inexpensive, were also a popular pastime. From the Howdy Dance to the Senior Prom students danced on the new gymnasium floor doing steps like the "Big Apple."

The favorite pastime during school hours was "Hi-Day." Every Friday students roamed Stockton Court saying "hi" to everyone they passed, thus creating the warm atmosphere for which HP is still known.

In 1937, students of HP received a special treat. An assembly was held in Westover Hall featuring a demonstration of a new mechanical luxury, the television. The show consisted of a three foot television screen, this being the third largest screen in the world at the time. Fifteen thousand dollars worth of equipment was used to explain the function and use of the TV. It was predicted that the television would be in wide use by the late '30's to the early '40's.

Other happenings in and around campus included the bitter rivalry between the Spartans and the Compton Tartars. It wasn't until the 40's that the Bell Eagles became the arch-enemies. In 1939 HP clenched its first City Championship title. And in 1936, Reeder Field was honored to host the Ohio State football team as they practiced for a game against USC.

In track, Foy Draper was making headlines. He tied the World's High School Record for the 100 yard dash, 9.6 seconds, and went on to qualify for the Olympics but that dream never came true — he was killed in World War II.

Eccentric weather also plagued HP. In our usually mild winter, freezing temperatures, sleet and even snow touched the ground here at Sparta. Stranger still, in early spring Huntington Park set a national record high when the mercury topped 81 degrees before noon!

Of all the long lived changes that were evident in the '30's, only one remains with us . . . enrollment at HP reached the 2,000 plus mark. This caused a bit of crowding in HP's corridors but once again students at Sparta made the best of it while enjoying the low prices, getting the good times out of the hard and letting happiness guide them through the thirties.

THE 40'S - SPARTANS

As the years sped by, the 1940's found America in the midst of World War II with patriotism and brotherhood hitting all-time highs. High school campuses were no exception as the "All-American Teenager" was born.

Sports were one of HP's main attractions in this era. Two athletic superstars were born. Ralph Heywood was considered one of the best ends during his football days. All-League and All-City in high school, he later became an All-American left end at USC. Another superstar was Gene Rock, one of Eastern League's greatest basketball players. Rock also went on to become an All-American star at USC.

Football games took on a new color as Sparta's first drill team was organized. In 1946, the Spartanettes, or, as they are more commonly known, the drill team, performed for the first time at a Wilson vs HP game. Fifty girls marching in pride emerged to prance their way into the hearts of every HP fan. The girls' attire consisted of a white pique flared skirt, a long-sleeved tailored blouse and an orange gabardine vest.

Another addition to HP in the '40's was the Social Hall, now known as the Hospitality House. It was finished in December 1939. A pay assembly and dance were held to furnish the hall. The fireplace, piano and modern kitchen made this social hall one of the most popular places for parties and meetings both during and after school hours.

Campus activities included the renowned "student court" which consisted of four judges and a jury. Students found guilty were left to the mercy of the creative penalties the judges handed down. It was discontinued in 1940 and replaced by Girls' and Boys' Councils.

There was also a mock convention, patterned after the national conclave, that was held in the spring of each Presidential election year dating back to 1920.

In 1947, boys were finally offered a class in Foods, in preparation for a career as a chef. The class was also geared to guys who enjoyed camping so that they could learn how to prepare "delicious dishes" on an outing.

For the girls, the Bachelorettes club was formed. It was actually a new name for the Home Economics Club. Girls who had had Home Economics were eligible. They served in the lunch lines at nutrition and noon.

HP's dream of an on-campus Malt Shop finally became a reality in the forties. The building became a meeting place for teenagers, serving hot drinks, hot sandwiches, candy and ice cream during the lunch period.

Fashions and fads also took on a new look as plaid flare skirts topped with wide leather belts became the rage. Flowered blouses, pinafores and cotton blouses also came on the scene as the weather turned warmer.

And so the forties passed leaving behind the scars of war and memories of campus life as each year's graduates turned to face the future.

~ A NEW ERA

The 1950's dawned with the age of bobby sox, pony tails, and the "greased" look. Girls' skirts were flared and boys' hair was worn in the popular duck tail fashion.

Pride was heightened in 1956 when HP's marching Spartan Band, under the direction of Robert Shushan, was shown on television station KTTV.

This was also the year that Sparta's football team began its winning streak. The Varsity was Eastern League Champions for four consecutive years, beginning with 1956.

However, destruction and tragedy struck again. A fire broke out in the Girls' Gym in the early morning hours of March 16, 1956. Lasting four hours, the fire was finally quelled.

The '50's had its share of good times too. 1959 brought on HP's 50th anniversary. "A half a century is not long in the reckoning of the ages, but to a school it's long enough . . . Fifty years is a weekend to a redwood tree, but to a California school it's many graduations . . . Fifty years is a twinkle to a star, but to a school it's time enough to teach three full generations the meaning of words like 'freedom' and 'democracy' and 'America' — and to give those generations the skills and attitudes that help to make their nation strong." — quoted from the 1959 year-book.

Adding to the excitement of the anniversary was the Varsity football team's title of Los Angeles City Champs.

In the 1960's HP students were recognized as being scholastically superior when the Iowa Test of Educational Development results showed them as being in the top ten percent of high school students across the nation. To top the honors, three Spartans qualified as semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Weekly happenings at Sparta included the choosing of a Sam and Susie Sparta each Monday for the most spirited boy and girl Spartans. Having your car named "Heap of the Week" was the ultimate in the honors for 4-wheeling students.

Teachers come and teachers go but those who came to stay were Lila Gallery, Ted Manos, Merlene Kinyon, Bob Goulet, Ellen Rogers, Robert Black, and our principal Ben Brown.

This decade was an exciting time in sports. In 1960 the HP Spartans were defending a three year Eastern League title but lost to South Gate in a disappointing match ending HP's 17 game win-streak. The mighty Spartans captured the Eastern League Crown again in 1962 but 1963 was another story. In this year, Bell Eagles defeated HP for the first time since the Korean War!! It had been rumored that this happened only because of transfers from HP to Bell.

The technology of the '70's was in full force by the year of the Bicentennial. HP, too, was affected by the national spirit brought on by the Bicentennial. Pie eating contests in honor of George Washington are an example of this.

HP's spirit was high during the early '70's. To add further to this excitement was the Varsity Basketball Team of 1977 who were League Champs.

The '50's, '60's, and early '70's were years of change, progress and growth, and along with them, the students of HP grew.

HASSLES

Riiiiinnnggg! A drowsy head pokes out of a mess of blankets (yes, YOU) and stares at the clock which is still ringing madly upon your headboard. So, with the greatest of ease, you slickly manage to destroy the sadistic little thing with the swipe of a hand, and you're ready to go out and face the world.

On the way to school, (let's make it an overcast day), you're thinking, "It's going to be an alright day!" No sooner than the thought leaves your mind, it begins to rain. However, the school isn't too far away (across the street), and you convince yourself that the rain will stop any second now. You look up at the sky for a moment, and sure enough, it stops. You grin to yourself, kinda' conceited like, and wonder just how great the day is really going to be.

As you glide along through Stockton Court, however, your day hits its first snag. You see your shoes and pants are really snazzy-new, and by God, you just thoroughly washed them on the wet, uncut grass. Muttering a couple nasties to your soul, you glance into one of the rooms to see what time it is. You do a double take when you see that there is only one minute left until the tardy bell rings and you don't even have your books!

Of course, normally you wouldn't really care whether you were late or not, but your teacher warned you about the next tardy and you might just get kicked out of your sport for another 'U'. But, you decide to yourself, "Aw heck, I'll make it if I try." So, you run like you-know-what to your locker, fumble with the combo, grab your books, run like wild to your math class and miraculously beat the bell by the smallest fragment of a second ever recorded. However, there is someone already sitting in your seat and none of the faces in the room actually look too familiar. It's then that you realize that today is permanent program day and record room meets first!

Now, you're sitting in record room, disgusted by your silly mistake and even more thoroughly mad when you see the pile of cards your teacher has dumped on the desk for you to fill out, (buff, blue, green, orange, yellow, Didn't I fill these out before?!?) Fortunately for you, you're an expert at these sorts of things, and it only takes you a few minutes to fill them out anyway.

Next thing you know, the bell rings for nutrition and you're on your way to Stockton Court to sit and talk for a while with your friends. It's too bad the benches aren't in a more favorable condition for sitting. You see, they've just had their early morning visit from the birds and your friendly neighborhood gum-chewing junkie.

Well, who cares about sitting down anyway?

You don't really feel like resting; instead you feel hungry. Walking towards the hashline you step on an artifact left by you-know-who . . . the gum-chewing junkie. Well, it's cool. What's a bit of gum? By the time you reach the hashlines your hunger leaves you also, since you notice that the lines are just a little over a mile long . . . HMMM, you can't sit or eat, so what else is left? Go to the bathroom and see if you're still as beautiful as when you left home? Why not!

Walking into the restroom, unfortunately, can be a nightmare to those who have noses that have any sense of smell. Well, again you figure, what the heck . . . with all that smoke in there, you wouldn't have been able to find your way to the mirror anyway.

Just as you make your exit from the restroom, the bell rings, and, once again, you have to make a dash to class.

Standing in your squad line for gym (it's freeezzzing in the gym at the moment), you watch as your instructor comes out and has you do exercises. First come the situps (when did they last wash these floors, anyhow?), then come all the rest.

By the end of fourth, you're as hungry as a bear. So, you get into the cafeteria line (a mile long, naturally), finally get your food (fit for a cockroach) and gulp it down against your will.

But once you're outside, the fresh, black L.A. air and dull green sun pep you up a bit. You go to talk to your friends when someone you abhor greatly stops you and starts to chat. Well, she wastes most of your time, and when she finally does leave, the bell rings telling you to go to fifth period.

There you sit, dozing in fifth, when your teacher turns to the class, smirks, and yells, "DROP!" You look at him like he's some kind of sadist and sink slowly to the dusty floor. Unfortunately for you, your tight pants aren't that tight anymore due to the rip you sustained during the drop drill . . . right on the seat of your pants. Soon the bell to go home rings, and as you leave school you're wondering about your nice day and the nice things that happened to you. You feel like ending it all, but stop and say, heck, it coulda happened to anyone!

Fads are those peculiar social agreements that change as abruptly as the weather. By fads, we mean those constantly changing trends ranging from the ridiculous to the absurd and including such things as language, music, hair-styles, and — especially — clothes.

If one was "with-it" this year, one owned a pair of boots, gauchos, large frame glasses, a cowl neck sweater, a pair of green fatigue pants, and a vast amount of T-shirts with phrases on them that would make one's grandmother turn over in her grave, and if one was really aiming for ultimate in "chic," having thrice-pierced ears was the thing to do. Of course we cannot go without some mention of what went underneath "the slinkiest dresses and slightly tight pants" — Underalls, Good ol' Underalls were there to keep everything smooth this year — or were they there? — we'll never tell.

Hairstyles have had their cut of the ups and downs of trends. With men's hair growing increasingly longer, and women's hair lengths getting shorter, it is becoming virtually impossible to tell the two sexes apart. Of course, there are the select few who cannot be distinguished even if they were completely bald. However, previous styles seem to be making a comeback.

The media have indirectly become status symbols. If a person did not attend a showing of "Rocky" and "A Star is Born," he may have just as well slept through the entire year.

Naturally, we musn't forget music. This year there were a few albums that one simply could not do without — "Boston," "Hotel California," and "Songs in the Key of Life" — to name a few. Of course, we wouldn't exclude "Boz Scaggs," who kept one dancing in the summer night along with the "disco duck." That is, of course, if one could dance to those fast moving disco-dances which can make a person nauseous just to observe.

All in all, one never can predict what the masses will imitate and later forget.

cliques

Ever since the beginning of time, people have made friends and formed groups which are called cliques. These cliques have usually consisted of people of the same tastes, sex, and age. They've always worn the same sort of clothes and could nearly always be distinguished from other groups. Things aren't any different at HP. Although the campus is a somewhat smaller society, it still has its share of interesting types of groups.

The groups at HP range from the more conservative to the very wild and far out. One of these groups could be called the "intellectuals" named for their academic minds and good grades. They can usually be found in the northwest sector of Stockton Court discussing the situation of the world and their Trigonometry homework.

Directly across from the "intellectuals" sit the "Jocks." These are all mainly the athletes of this school. The "Jocks" can be separated into four groups; starting from the northeast corner of the court are the Macho-Stud Jocks. You can tell they're studs because they're never sitting down, always standing behind the benches, assuming that that connotes "coolness."

As we continue southward, we find the semi-tough Jocks, who stand on top of the benches but still never sit. Then come the "Normal Jocks," some sitting, some standing, and then the "Junior Jocks," who are trying to establish a place for themselves in the high society of Jockland and don't care where they sit.

At the southern end sit the "Brothers of Soul" some athletes, some hard-tryers. The west side basically consists of the average students and couples who sit under bird-infested trees.

The gazebo area is another place to find cliques. Probably the largest of these are the "Hollywood," semi-fashionable party-goers who lounge by the gazebo.

But not everyone belongs to a particular clique; many are wanderers, some loners. No matter what clique people belong to, or what they do, or how they act, they all fit together to form this unique mini-society we call HP.

Bruce Thompson

Clockwise from left: 1. Alex Perez, John Gomez, Anthony Serrano and other sophs relax by the gazebo. 2. This clique made their hang-out at the lunch benches. 3. The south end of Stockton Court. 4. This group's turf is near the gazebo. 5. The gazebo area at lunchtime. 6. Victor Sean, Tony Gonzalez and Art Avila make their place on the east side of Stockton Court.

The students of Huntington Park High School will long remember the year of 1976-77 for its many fun and diversified activities. Some traditional activities maintained at HP include the painting of Stockton Rock, which seemed to take on chameleon qualities due to its overnight changes in color. Other traditional activities included voter registration, Girls' League's Big Sister-Little Sister Tea, Boys' Forum Christmas record room decorating contest, Girls Week and Boys Week. The Senior-Faculty basketball game was a success with the inclusion of seven female players to the senior squad. Powder Puff Football also kept up with the changing times with the addition of male cheerleaders. Another athletic activity was the Orange and Gray Football game which was re-established after several years.

A strong student body president and a hard working leadership class were the reasons for many new activities this year. Starting with football season, the concession stand was turned over to the student body from the Booster Club. McDonald's Night also became a big success before and after football games, with the "Spartan Spirit Special" being the most popular buy. Because the overwhelming numbers who partook in this activity became too much for the size of the McDonald's, we were forced to change to Shakey's Pizza Parlor where it was continued successfully until the end of the football season.

The most successful activities of the year, apparently, were the dances, starting with the Howdy Dance in October and continuing with the Halloween Dance, Homecoming Coronation Ball, Holiday Hop, Valentine Victory Dance, Sadie Hawkins Dance, Fifties Dance and the Farewell Dance at the end of the year. It was because of the great amount of school spirit and activities like these that Huntington Park students will always remember 1976-77 as a truly great year.

Clockwise, from the left: 1. "Marrying Sam" Sugarman made his share of hitches during Girls Week activities. 2. After the game, Ann Dannelly, Dana Malkenhorst and Bruce Thompson talk over the Senior-Faculty Basketball bout. 3. Bruno Galliadi handles the money in the new concession stand. 4. Graceful Leah Roberson performing in the Area B Traveling Talent Show. 5. Ramon Aguayo finds marshmallows a little hard to swallow during Spirit Week. 6. Joel Fonseca, Leo Guzman and Robert Ramirez display their beauty and charm at the Powder Puff Game. 7. Rory Anderson leaves his mark on Stockton Rock as Eddie Santillan watches. 8. Widney High School Wheelchair Basketball team boards bus after victory over HP in a wheelchair Basketball game. 9. Bruce Thompson and Tina Lunnon announce winners of a candy-drive drawing.

Spirit gives enjoyment to everything!

The spirit groups of H.P. are important to the enthusiasm and eagerness of the students. These people attend every sporting event, both winter and spring, to cheer on the mighty Spartan teams. They also participate in sports rallies and assemblies. According to Danny Gonzales, "Without the spirit groups, the games would lack fun and excitement for the spectators."

1. Sam and Susie Sparta: Verna Daniels, Juan Ramirez.
2. Flags: Gail Peterson, Brenda Coleman, Guillermina Casteneda, Cruz Hinojos, Delia Zendejas, Kathy Cooper, Olga Gonzales, Jenny Fernandez, Donna Swires, Sylvia Reyes, Corrine Martinez, Sonya Henry.
3. Varsity Cheerleaders and Yell Leaders: Cathy Luke, Sharonelle Clark, Teresa Molina, Clifton Bell, Dania Martin, Annette Lunnion, Leah Roberson, Leo Vargas, Eneida Benitez, Robert Ramirez, Carol Dawson, Norma Resendez.
4. Bee Cheerleaders: Matilda Caballero, Melinda De la Cruz, Anna Ramos, Flavia Garcia, Isabel Ramirez, Lisa Navarro.
5. Spartanettes: Sandra Quinones, Sara Mahan, Debbie Naber, Jana Tobey, Evangelina Perez, Maria Denis, Eva Dominguez, Loretta Guerra, Veronica Molina, Susana Davila, Sandy Kuni-sawa, Ana Boeckh, Beatriz Arellano, Dolores Jaso, Marlene Olartecoechea, Pat Fong, Jolynne Griffiths, Maria Gastelum, Michelle King, Angela Scott, Irma Salazar, Patricia Zamora, Sylvia Rodriguez, Martha Aguirre, Rebecca Ibarra, Sue Wright, Regina Navarro, Doris Palma, Jodilynn Grijalva, Ana Valerde, Bertha Almaguer, Yvette Gonzales, Cindy Villalobos.

The stage crew meets during first period in the auditorium; their job is to prepare for all the assemblies and programs held at HP. Members have to arrange the props, set up the stage, and make sure that proper lighting is available.

This year, due to their work on the Area B Traveling Talent show, the stage crew was voted "Most Outstanding in Area B" and was given a trophy.

Red Cross means help

The purpose of the Red Cross Club is to help others. Every year Red Cross members put on their Halloween costumes and take candy to students at Pacific Boulevard School. At Thanksgiving, Red Cross members prepare individual desserts and deliver them to Huntington Park Convalescent Center.

The big event of the year is Christmas. Red Cross members make stockings, fill them with toys gathered from the annual toy drive at HP, and distribute them to needy children. According to Elvia Correa, president of Red Cross, "It was a worthwhile and fulfilling experience."

The student government class is, in a great sense, the development center of this complex society called Huntington Park High.

With 21 elected officials and one advisor, the class has been on the go this year, from sponsoring the first health hashline to trying to eliminate the communication gap that is usually present between the student body and the student government with the new open forums. Throughout the year we have aimed at reaching that hypothetical goal — "Total student involvement" — by sponsoring many noon activities, dances, and school-community beautification and better relations projects.

As an Area in Los Angeles Unified Schools, H.P. also came close to that goal with the first "Area B Traveling Talent Show" (sponsored by HP) and with our many leadership exchanges where better relations between schools were created. One accomplishment which many students will not see is the first HP Handfolder Guide which will come from the printer this summer, ready for the incoming sophomores.

"We have gone far this year, but it has been thanks to two things, the determination of the 21 officials, and the willingness of the student body to get involved," commented Augusto Failde student body president.

BSU enjoys rapid growth

The goal of BSU is to make students aware of the contributions of Blacks to the development of America. Also, the club was formed to encourage students to enrich their educational standards.

This semester the BSU enjoyed a theater party by attending "Bubbling Brown Sugar" in Hollywood. There was also an autograph session with Alex Haley, author of "Roots."

With the addition of Black History month to the school calendar, there were many new activities: an afro-dress and braid day, music, art contests and showcase displays. Ending the year was the Multi-Cultural Awareness Week beginning May 1.

A.W.P. stands for cleaner campus

AWP stands for Anti-Waste Patrol. This year was very active for the club, even though it's only been in existence for two years. The club was involved in painting the press box, the benches in Stockton Court, the trash cans, gym bleachers, and the Gazebo. They were also in charge of "Clean-up Week." Then there was the "Clean Fiend," this person was in charge of letting everyone know where the worst trash problems were.

"It's been a long hard year, but it's been worth it," said Ana Boeckh when interviewed. "We the members of AWP feel that our biggest accomplishment was getting the rest of the school involved in making HP a better place for every one. Special thanks to all the people who helped and put in so much of their time."

There is an all new Chess Club at HP, under the direction of Robert Goulet and Howard Wolfe. This is the club's first year of competition with other schools. In February, Kim Connors, who is currently ranked ninth in the United States, came to HP and played a total of 22 students from HP, South Gate, and Bell High Schools, simultaneously, and won each game.

Gridiron too hot for Spartans

The Spartan varsity football team ended the '76 season with a dismal 1-6-2 record, their second straight losing season after last year's 1-7-1 record.

Coach Ray Vernoy ended the '76 season, his eighteenth campaign, with only his fifth losing season.

The Spartans seemed to be less than mighty during the preseason with an opening day 0-0 tie with Belmont, coupled with losses to Narbonne, Eagle Rock, and a 30 point loss to Wilson, to end the pre-season play with an 0-3-1 record.

HP's lone win of the long season was a 7-3 Eastern League victory over Jordan, putting the Spartans into a temporary tie for first place with arch rival Bell at 1-0-1.

The gallant Spartan team ended the regular season with a lowly 1-3-1 record, losing their last three games of the year, including a 47-17 Homecoming loss to South Gate.

Personal honors went to Henry Salazar who was named team MVP and also named to the First All Southeast Team. Three other players also joined in on the honors when Rory Anderson, Faron Deeter and Joe Pineda were named to the Second All League Team.

Bee's give life to dull season

The Spartan Bee football team brought some excitement to HP with their impressive ballplaying. During the season they had a six game winning streak before finishing with an overall 6-2-1 record. They attracted crowds which were almost as big as the varsity crowds.

According to Carlos Ortiz, sports editor, "When Mr. Ralston came from Nimitz Jr. High he brought with him a winning attitude which showed in the team's overall performance!"

The Spartan hoopsters clinched their first Eastern League Championship since the varsity team of 1960, with an 8-2 league record and a 15-5 overall mark.

Led by coach Jim Didio, the Spartan's only losses were against the Jordan Bulldogs, the first a one point loss, 57-56, and the other was a rout, 73-62 loss at Jordan.

HP's star guard Louis Coleman averaged 21 points a game and was selected as the Eastern League's player of the year. Coleman was selected for the all-city team by the Daily Signal and the Los Angeles Times.

Center Brian Clark, who averaged 10 points a game, was also named to the Eastern League First Team, and guard Julio Martinez was named to the Second All Eastern League Team.

The exciting 1976-1977 Cee Basketball team coached by Ted Manos, captured the Eastern League Championship crown with a perfect 10-0 league record. Their overall record was an equally impressive 13-1. The only loss that marred the season came at the hands of the Narbonne Gauchos. The season was filled with many exciting contests, including a thrilling one point win over the Jordan Bulldogs and a 79-46 rout over the Roosevelt Rough Riders.

One of the most satisfying wins of the season was when the team clinched the Eastern League Championship with a win over archrival Bell.

Five members of the team made All Eastern League. Guard Danny Gonzales and center Anthony Serrano made First Team All League; Forwards Kent Lewis and George Castrejon made Second Team All League; Guard Manuel Rico made Third Team All League. "Even though the starting five were given All League recognition, the rest of the team contributed to the team's overall success," said Carlos Ortiz, sports editor of the Spartan Shield.

The Spartan Bee basketball team continued HP's successful basketball season by taking second place in Eastern League. They finished with a respectable 6-4 record against some of the biggest Bee teams in the city. After a slow start, the Bee's won six out of their last seven games in league competition.

There were some very exciting games during the course of the season. One of these was marked by a fight at the close of the game against South Gate, when the Bee's defeated the Rams in the last seconds of the game. Another thrilling victory was a big win over the previously undefeated Bell.

Four members of the team took All Eastern League honors: center Alex Perez made First Team All League; forward Sammy Salas made Second Team All League; guards Henry Corral and Ortelio Avila made Third Team All League.

Spartans enjoy the spell of Magic Mountain

Two hundred seniors and guests climbed aboard four buses on Saturday, October 9, to spend the evening at Magic Mountain. This field trip, which cost $7.50, was the first to be held at night and to allow off-campus dates. Fifteen chaperones joined the group and despite their efforts to clear the dance floor, students boogied an hour longer than planned!

Class of '77 enjoys its special week

The graduates of Huntington Park High School throughout the year are honored by experiencing customs and traditions which accompany the title of being a Senior. Outstanding among the many traditions is Senior Week. Here seniors dedicate a week to activities and fund raising campaigns. This year was no exception, as the class of '77 designated February 14-18 to honor themselves and have some fun.

Stockton Court was the scene for noon activities, ranging from sack races to apple-passing relays. Seniors participated without hesitation and defeated, in every event, the ever-challenging underclassmen.

Senior Week was not all fun and games. On the contrary, serious moments elapsed, as fund raising campaigns went underway. Senior Night at Shakey's was held at the local parlor for seniors to enjoy a night of good food, laughs and even entertainment. All proceeds of the night went to finance future senior activities.

To change the pace, the seniors sought to add a totally original activity to the week. Consequently, there emerged a drawing for two Led Zeppelin Concert tickets. A sizable profit was made, adding to the financial success of the week.

Of course, the highlight of the week was the annual Powder Puff game, in which the seniors graciously allowed a junior victory, 6-0.

1. Pat Iniguez and Leo Vargas manage to pass the apple after much struggling.
2. Having an appetizer before dinner Bruno Galliadi watches entertainment.
3. King Gustavo Iniguez receives his congratulations from Ms. Morgan.
4. Senior defense line tough and ready.
5. Forgetting play, Racheal looks toward coaches for assistance.
6. The senior sidelines during the Powder Puff game.
7. Remnants of an exasperating night!
8. Exhibiting the main attraction are Rita Moreno and Cynthia Perez.
9. Senior guys racing energetically to win potato sack race.
10. Jesus keeping the Senior Pride.

Along with the usual memories of a great summer, and the ever present hope of an even better school year, the new year also brought with it a diverse array of new teachers, staff and faculty, all bursting with new and innovative ideas.

The new faculty members came from as far as Oxford College in England and as close as USC, but each was united in a common bond and with a common goal: teaching.

Leading off the new teachers in the English Department was Martin Baran, a former pro-basketball player turned Rhodes Scholar turned Spartan. Others new to the department include: Mary DaRin, Gussie Powe, James Whiting, Anita Thompson, and Lorraine Lopez.

The Social Studies Department also played host to a variety of new members. These were: Brian Ohno, Mark Montgomery (a former Spartan football hero), and Mary White.

Also to receive new members were the Business Department, which welcomed Louise Moore; the Science Department, George Young; the Art Department, Pat Dore; and the Physical Department, Penny Kins to take the position vacated by Dixie Young, who was on sabbatical.

Sparta also greeted other new personnel; in the Math Department, Lottie Johnson and in the ESL Department, Alicia Lopez and Carol Tuckman.

But not all changes which awaited the faculty would be welcome. Ed Stirdevant, a long time member of the Social Studies Department, retired from regular teaching, and only recently returned as a substitute. Also to retire was Cathy Guayante of the English Department.

Pauline Conway, a former member of the Business Education Department, retired from teaching because of medical injuries sustained during an automobile accident. Our deepest sympathies to her and her family.

However, the Spartan teaching faculty was not the only department at HP to experience changes. So too were the administrative and student services departments. The library at HP welcomed Sherry Sheppard as a replacement for retired Sylvia von Boenigk. Sheppard was already well known to most Spartans, as she had been the librarian at Gage Jr. High School.

Also new to the ranks of Sparta were Nurse Evelyn Johnson, Administrative Dean Nancy Donaldson, and her replacement for the second semester, Mrs. Joanna Chisholm.

Perhaps the largest administrative change was that of principal. Mr. Ben W. Brown, who left last year because of medical problems, was replaced by Mr. Richard Miles for the Fall '76 semester. When Brown returned for the Spring '77 semester, Miles was transferred to Holmes Jr. High in the Valley.

SPECIALISTS IN PORTRAITS, WEDDINGS AND FAMILY GROUPS

This is to certify that all transactions that occurred during the school year 1976-77 have been presented to the best of our ability in this, the El Recuerdo of 1977.

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to Ellen Rogers, Dr. Paul Griffin, and Shigeru Kawashiri for their contributions toward the success of this report.

Our special thanks goes to all personnel who so graciously endured interruptions during the compiling of this record.

Thank you,
The Yearbook Staff

Aida,
 Adios, Siamesa,
 Solons, auvoir,
 I say now to a really nice & pretty girl
 I knew as a friend & person
 Hopefully I get to see you during the Summer, who knows, I might just drop in at "Jack in the Box" and take you up on that free hamburger you offered me. And next year please try to be here a little bit more often because it sets kind of boring talking to air from 4th to lunch. Its to bad, and a real shame that you didn't make cheerleader but so what, because I know in my heart you deserved it. Maybe some time might happen to write of them. But that would be mean. Anyway I is often shout for now because I in starting to hog up room.

P.S. It won't be taking when we say
 Aloha, h, alo, Buenos dias, etc, etc etc

Love ya,
 Saul
 Hernandez

Aida, I must in to get a new suit in to get geometry. I wish to get see you next year. I am from the summer. I am always always

To Aida: The cutest little girl ever. Its been great knowing you for all these years (2). I hope I know you for a whole lot longer. I enjoy being around you because you laugh funny. Keep up the good looks, dont forget to do your classwork - homework, keep laughing funny, have a great summer and all that stuff everyone else has already said. Hope to see you in summer school with Mr. P. (Perakis) love Barry Shields
